

Announcement: Near East and South Asia Undergraduate Exchange Program (NESA Undergraduate Program) FY – 2011

The American Center of the Embassy of the United States in Dhaka is pleased to announce the competition for the 2011 Near East and South Asia Undergraduate Exchange Program (NESA Undergraduate Program). The NESA Undergraduate Program provides scholarships for one academic year of U.S. study in a non-degree program, funded by the Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. The goal of the program is to provide a substantive exchange experience at a U.S. college or university to a diverse group of emerging student leaders from non-elite under-represented groups in the Middle East, North Africa and South Asia.

NESA Undergraduate Program participants must return to Bangladesh upon completion of the program and may not stay on for degree study in the U.S. The NESA Undergraduate Program was developed to meet and refine a large and diverse group of student leaders with in-depth exposure to U.S. society, culture and academic institutions by engaging in substantive academic exchanges at colleges and universities across the country.

This program will provide full scholarships to outstanding students from non-elite, under-represented sectors in countries including Bangladesh for one academic year of non-degree undergraduate study at accredited U.S. two- and four-year institutions. All academic fields of study are eligible. The program will place participants at U.S. colleges and universities for the 2011-2012 academic year. Scholarships will be awarded for one academic year (approximately 10 months) depending upon the applicant's interests and availability, as well as placement options and availability of funds.

Academic-year scholarship participants will be enrolled full-time in undergraduate course work chosen from a host institution's existing curriculum to allow students ample opportunity for substantive interaction with U.S. faculty and students and exposure to U.S. academic and classroom culture. In addition, to help ensure students are successful in their new academic environments, host institutions will offer tailored instruction on topics including academic research and writing, critical thinking, time management, note-taking, and studying for and taking tests. Participants will live on-campus with American peers.

Participation in community service activities for all students is mandatory. Additionally, an internship component will be offered for all participants during the academic component of the program. Internships will be related to the participant's field of study and/or career plans.

Scholarships will be granted primarily to students who are currently enrolled in an undergraduate degree program in their home country. However, individuals who are about to begin will be eligible to apply for this program. Candidates will be identified and nominated by the American Center, with final selection made by the Department of State in Washington.

Candidates should be highly motivated non-elite or underprivileged undergraduate students from colleges, universities and other institutions of higher education who demonstrate leadership through academic
